

Proprietary Interest and Innovation

As Proprietary Interest arithmetically approaches 100%, Innovation increases geometrically toward infinity. This relationship is due to the almost limitless human imagination and capacity for innovation and to the fact that innovations live beyond individual human lifespan. (For example, Archimedes innovations continue to create value today.)

Therefore, implementing Proprietary Interest in virtually every aspect of human endeavor has an almost incalculable value to humanity: for what earthly problem cannot be solved by human innovation?

Volitional Partners, LLC is creating the products and services that will launch the Proprietary Revolution. If you or your company want to be among the first to participate in this revolution, please contact:

The ideas in this article are those of the author(s). If you choose to act on these ideas it is a condition of the author(s) that you do so in a moral way; by communicating acknowledgement to the author(s) and to others. Moreover, these ideas offer only a hint of the further ideas and valuable products that flow from them. Those ideas and products will only be shared with parties who act morally. The author(s) steadfastly intend to always make it more profitable for anyone to use these ideas morally than to use them without acknowledgement. If you request permission to excerpt or reprint this article you will almost certainly receive it.
